

COMMUNICATE EDUCATE INNOVATE INCLUSION SELF-SUFFICIENT

Hello, I am Warmon Keith Moses. I am Mohave/Pawnee and a member of the Colorado River Indian Tribes. My parents were Harry Moses Jr & Jennifer Drennan Short.

I have joined the race this year to be Chairman of CRIT to put forth ideas I think we should consider in our path to the future. Serving on the Tribal Council before and now being the Assistant Manager of the Bluewater Lagoon has provided me with the experience I need to manage and govern a business on a large and small scale.

Communication is key to getting your ideas out to the community. My experience in all facets of communication has allowed me to convey my message on a large and small scale. If no one understands what you are trying to do how can they agree to follow. CRIT is at a precipice of either moving towards an uncertain future or moving towards a well-planned and thought-out path towards success

Education walks hand in hand with communication. The more information you can get to your members and allow ideas and questions to flow back and forth the more successful your journey.

Innovation, I'm a child of the 60's, I recognize and understand the ways we used to do things. I have seen a vast leap in technology to the present day during my lifetime. CRIT must move forward using all means of technology to communicate and educate our members to be fully successful.

Inclusion means everyone must be a part of the journey. CRIT is not one tribe but four. Each with its own voice. Working over the past few years with the language groups has allowed me insight into just a part of what those voices are saying and we must all work together as one voice to allow our future endeavors to be successful.

Self Sufficiency is the key to our future. I saw during the pandemic CRIT's reliance on outside agencies for even the simplest of things. This Tribe has been blessed with many resources and businesses created by our great leaders who came before us. CRIT needs to take the path towards making its enterprises effective and successful. By making hard choices & investing in our enterprises we take steps towards being able to address long-term needs such as: Housing, Education, Elder Care, and all other issues many of which are decades old.

If I'm being realistic CRIT will not be fully self sufficient in my lifetime but at some point, we need to start to take steps to be a Tribe that takes care of its own needs. Let history mark this election as the point when we decided to do so.

I will be posting more videos of my ideas on my social media platforms on Tik Tok, Instagram & Facebook so look for those.

I will hold 2 rallies and invite all candidates to attend so that we can discuss ideas and solutions. Let's not wait for the 1 time of meet the candidates to have a debate on the issues. I encourage all candidates to come together and discuss our views side by side to allow a meaningful discussion for our members to hear and decide on their own what their choices will be.

Lastly, I commend all our members who have stepped forward and want to lead and wish each of you well as you pursue a seat on the CRIT Tribal Council.
